CLEGG PRAISE FOR PREMIUM SCHOOL

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

DEPUTY Prime Minister Nick Clegg met students and teachers at a secondary school as part of a series of visits to Liberal Democrat constituencies.

He paid a two-hour visit to Highgate Wood School, in Montenotte Road, on Friday.

The party leader was joined by Hornsey and Wood Green MP Lynne Featherstone to see how the pupil premium is helping to support children from deprived backgrounds.

The arts college achieved above the national average exam results last year, with 72 per cent of pupils attaining five GCSEs at grade A* to C including English and maths.

That was despite 37 per cent of pupils receiving free school meals.

Highgate Wood is a beneficiary of the pupil premium, a scheme aimed at raising achievement among disadvantaged children, which was started by the government in 2011.

Mr Clegg was taken round the 1,400-pupil school and dropped in on maths, history and cookery classes.

He told the Advertiser: "The pupil premium is radically different from similar schemes in the past. It is not aimed at a particular area but it is about the individual boy and girl."

"I strongly believe that if we want to give youngsters the best education, we should treat them as individuals. I don't think it would work if you just take a broad brushstroke and make it about certain areas."

"It is great feeling for a politician to come to school and actually see how ideas like the pupil premium – which I have fought for as a politician – are working out in reality."

"Highgate Wood is a great school and I've been hugely impressed by what I have seen."

Patrick Cozier, Highgate Wood's headteacher, added: "We were happily surprised to receive Nick Clegg at the school today."

"He is one of the politicians behind the pupil premium, which gives us money we are free to use in the way that we see fit."

Question time: Deputy Prime Minister Nick Clegg is put on the spot by youngsters at Highgate Wood School as headteacher Patrick Cozier and Hornsey and Wood Green MP Lynne Featherstone look on

"It allows us to give opportunities to pupils that we otherwise would not be able to, such as discounts for trips and extra support where it is needed."

"We have also been able to hire additional members of staff, which has hugely benefited our learning environment."

● Lynne Featherstone also visited the JAN Trust on Friday, where she talked to about 20 service users about the work the non-profit organisation is doing to support women.

The Hornsey and Wood Green MP also spoke with the trust's founder and director Rafaat Mughal and project manager Sajda Mughal about its campaign against forced marriage.

It is one of a number of campaigns being run by the charity, based in Bedford Road, Wood Green.

Atish highly commended

THE students' union president of the College of Haringey, Enfield and North East London has been highly commended in the national Student Governor of the Year 2013 awards.

Atish Shah is in the final year of his business BTEC Level 3 extended diploma course.

The once shy student now takes part in high-level meetings, as well as helping to set up a lunchtime film club and working as a student ambassador for the college.

Three jailed for bank card theft

THREE men have been jailed for stealing a Tottenham man's bank card and then using it to withdraw £290.

The 29-year-old victim was targeted at South Kensington Tube station, in west London, on June 11.

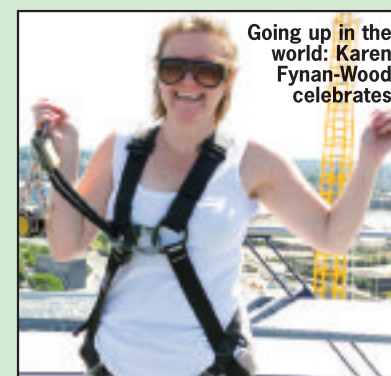

A "Lebanese Loop" device had been placed over the cashpoint at the station to trap the bankcard.

As the man used the machine, Filip Ioan, 41, Romeo Grigoras, 39, and Mihai Dragoi, 33, were watching over his shoulder to get his PIN number.

The trio used the card to withdraw the cash from two ATMs, but were arrested shortly afterwards by plain-clothed British Transport Police officers.

All three pleaded guilty to theft and being in possession of articles to commit fraud when they appeared at Blackfriars Crown Court on June 28.

Ioan and Grigoras were both jailed for 15 months and Grigoras for a year.

Going up in the world: Karen Fynan-Wood celebrates

Karen hits heights for cancer charity

A BANK worker overcame her fears to scale the roof of one of London's best-known buildings for charity.

Karen Fynan-Wood, who works for Barclays' branch in High Road, Tottenham, walked over the roof of the O2 Arena, in Greenwich, south-east London, helping to raise more than £20,000 for Macmillan Cancer Support.

She was joined by 95 Barclays colleagues from across London as they climbed 170 feet above the capital to raise cash for and awareness of the charity.

Karen had to deal with her fear of heights as well as blistering heat and a 30 per cent incline to complete the climb.

She said: "This was an exhilarating and at times scary climb for all of us, but we were more than happy to swap our suits for jumpsuits and give it a go for Macmillan."

"Thank you to everyone who made the day possible – particularly the people of Tottenham who really got behind our fundraising efforts."

"Without your support we couldn't have completed this challenge."

Council to tackle construction firms supporting blacklisting

ENFIELD Council has set out a number of proposals aimed at dealing with the issue of blacklisting in the construction industry.

In a report which will go before the cabinet tonight, Andrew Stafford, cabinet member for finance, will recommend the council adopts four measures aimed at tackling the practice by which union members, stewards or safety representatives on previous building projects are denied work.

Mr Stafford's report condemns the practice of blacklisting, which trade union Unite alleges is still prevalent within the construction industry.

It aims to support the national trade union campaign against blacklisting by "not allowing tenders from companies who subscribe to the use of unlawful construction industry blacklists from the date of this cabinet decision".

The council's finance chief also proposes an amendment to the authority's procurement documentation for future construction projects by requesting bidders confirm that they do not consult a blacklist and refuse to sign contracts with companies that do.

Finally, the report recommends encouraging other publicly-funded organisations to adopt the same measures.

The blacklisting scandal was exposed in 2009 after a raid on the offices of the Consulting Association, a clandestine company that operated a blacklist on behalf of more than 40 major construction firms.

Last month, members of trade union Unite met councillors at the Civic Centre, in Silver Street, Enfield, to raise awareness of the issue.

Mr Stafford said: "We unequivocally support the Unite campaign and we don't believe a blacklist of this nature should exist in this day and age."

"No one should be on a list and unable to find work because of union activity or for raising health and safety issues."

"The council simply does not want any contract with a contractor which has been known to consult the blacklist."

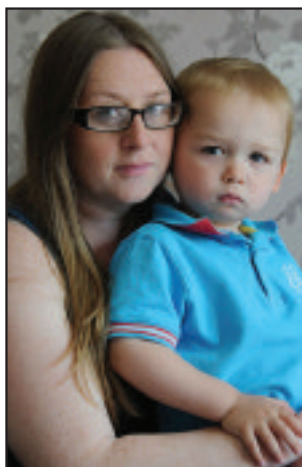

"In the meantime, we are keen to work with the construction industry and Unite to find a workable solution to this issue."

Mum's childcare or job quandary

Joanne will be forced to choose if places for babies are reduced

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

Counting the cost: Joanne Nasse with son Max, two

AN EXPECTANT mum fears changes to provision at council-run children's centres aimed at getting poorer parents into work may mean she has to quit her job.

Joanne Nasse, 32, of Pentrich Avenue, Enfield, says that government plans to expand the number of early years places at children's centres run by local authorities at the expense of those for babies may mean she will not be able to afford to return to work after giving birth to her second child.

Enfield Council anticipates that up to 600 additional places will be created for two, three and four-year-olds.

That is in response to government plans to expand the number of free early years places for kids who are entitled to free school meals or have special needs.

But the changes, scheduled to come into force in September, mean that the council will no longer provide any new places for under-tuos at any of its children's centres.

Mrs Nasse, whose two-year-old son Max attends the Sure Start Carterhatch Children's Centre, in Autumn Close, Enfield, currently pays £50 a day for Max's care. She is expecting a second child in October.

She told the Advertiser: "While my son's place is not under threat, I am worried I will not be able to pay for care for my newborn as the cheapest private alternative is £57 and the under-tuos' room is now £48 - it's £180 a month minimum extra which I fear I will not be able to afford."

"I will have to stay at home and care for my kids as I simply can't afford private child care. And lots of other parents are in the same situation."

A council spokeswoman said: "Meeting the government's target of placing 1,316 disadvantaged two-year-olds in childcare in areas of the borough where there is higher levels of deprivation presents a challenge."

"Enfield already has an established service which supports parents to find childcare. We will continue to work with providers and childminders to offer the required childcare."

"We will also offer parents the support of our informed families brokerage service in order to help them find the setting most suitable for their child's and families' needs."

Enfield Council funds 23 centres and directly runs one of them. Nine of them have nurseries attached and seven include places for babies. A consultation into the proposals ends on Friday.

Home straight: Primary schoolchildren competing at Lee Valley Athletics Centre

Young athletes on track for success

Early leader: Competitors line up for the girls' 800metres, below, before a Forty Hill School runner forges ahead of the pack

By Jacob Mignano

news.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

MORE than 200 primary schoolchildren turned out at Lee Valley Athletics Centre on Wednesday evening last week to compete in the Enfield primary schools district athletics finals.

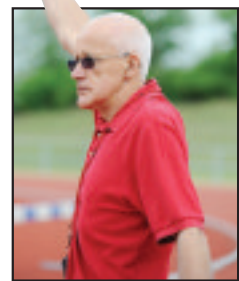

They had qualified from heats the previous week when all 65 primary schools from across Enfield were represented.

They ran in a variety of track events, including hurdles, sprint racers, 800 metres and relays. Some 28 schools were represented at the finals, with parents watching on during a lovely summer's evening as the youngsters made the most of the centre's state-of-the-art outdoor facilities, which were used for training by some of Team GB's 2012 Olympic heroes.

Paula Felgate, manager of the Enfield PE Team, said: "The evening went very well and we were most impressed by the standard of the students participating. There were some exceptional performances."

"It gave them the chance to see a fantastic venue in operation and, hopefully, can inspire some of them to take up athletics in their own time."

Clegg embraces for a halt to the

ANNE-MARIE SANDERSON

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

DEPUTY Prime Minister Nick Clegg has defended hospital reconfigurations in London, pointing to the clinical need for change at a time when the health service is faced with an ageing population.

In an exclusive interview with the Advertiser during a visit to Highgate Wood School, in Haringey, last week, the Liberal Democrat leader was asked whether or not Health Secretary Jeremy Hunt, who announced a review of emergency care last month, should halt all plans to close A&E units in the capital until that review has been completed.

Mr Clegg said: "From my experience as an MP in my constituency in Sheffield, I know that everyone is, quite rightly, protective of the NHS and in their area often people don't want anything changed.

"I understand and share that sentiment myself. But, of course, times move on and the health needs of the population change, medical costs increase and we have the growing issue of an ageing population.

"We have increasing pressure on hospital beds, particularly from those with long-term illnesses.

"Meanwhile, there are problems with GP out-of-hours services leading to more and more people accessing accident and emergency when in an ideal world they would be using primary care services in a community setting."

"All these issues are linked and I don't think anyone should be surprised that it is being looked at by those leading the NHS all the time.

"Where there are proposals to change things and when doctors and clinicians believe there are clinical reasons to put more money in one thing and less money in another, I think people should embrace change.

"But it is important that people locally are given a proper chance to make their own views known."

changes while MPs call closures at Chase Farm

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

ENFIELD politicians have piled the pressure on Health Secretary Jeremy Hunt by urging him to halt the scheduled closure of the accident and emergency unit at Chase Farm Hospital.

On Friday, Andy Love joined other Labour MPs, councillors and London Assembly members in calling for a review of planned closures of emergency services across the capital, while Enfield North MP Nick de Bois wrote his own letter to the Secretary of State for Health calling on him to halt the Chase Farm downgrade on Tuesday of last week.

Edmonton MP Mr Love was in a group of politicians, including London Assembly member for Enfield and Haringey Joanna McCartney and Enfield Council leader Doug Taylor, who signed a letter urging Mr Hunt "to personally review all the ongoing closures and downgrade proposals on a case-by-case basis in the light of the very latest medical evidence".

The hospital, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, is one of eight in London scheduled to have its A&E department removed or downsized.

Chase Farm is also due to lose its maternity unit in November.

Patients will instead be sent to

North Middlesex University Hospital, in Sterling Way, Edmonton, or Barnet Hospital, in Wellhouse Lane.

Mr Love said: "North Mid is under enormous pressure, with people in Upper Edmonton suffering longer waiting times as a result, yet the Health Secretary seems intent on closing A&Es across London, seriously adding to the problem."

"The scheduled closure of Chase Farm A&E will have an impact on already overstretched services. The evidence before us is overwhelming and the ball is now very much in Jeremy Hunt's court as we have asked him to justify the closures."

In his letter to the Health Secretary,

Mr de Bois highlighted the Hygeian Consulting report which was commissioned by Enfield Council into the Barnet, Enfield and Haringey Clinical Strategy and pointed out that the population projections initially used were "seriously flawed".

"It has been stated that Enfield's population would increase from 283,000 to 286,000 by 2015," he wrote. "In fact, the borough's population in 2011 stood at 314,000. This is a huge misjudgement."

Mr de Bois also stressed that promised improvements to primary care services had not yet been delivered and raised concerns whether maternity services at Barnet and North Mid alone would be able to deal with a growing population and rising birth rates.

He also sent letters to Enfield Council and the Enfield Clinical Commissioning Group.

In a letter to Mr Taylor, he said the council would receive his "full support" should councillors want to take legal action on the back of the report's findings.

He also called on the CCG to join the chorus of calls on Mr Hunt to halt the downgrade.

But a spokesman for the clinical strategy rejected the claims.

"Additional services in primary care are not a precondition for the changes in A&E to work," he said.

"The clinical strategy will not mean people needing urgent or emergency care have to turn to GP practices and primary care."

"Other emergency care services will be available."

"Capacity at Barnet and North Mid hospitals is being increased to meet the transfer of emergency services from Chase Farm Hospital."

The council's cabinet is expected to formally respond to the report tonight.

The CCG will not decide until September whether it deems the removal of A&E and maternity services appropriate.

FOCUS ON THE NHS

launch of a national stay in rude health?

birthday is an opportunity to celebrate, but if we're going to commemorate further milestones then we need to make sure our NHS is strengthened and protected for the future."

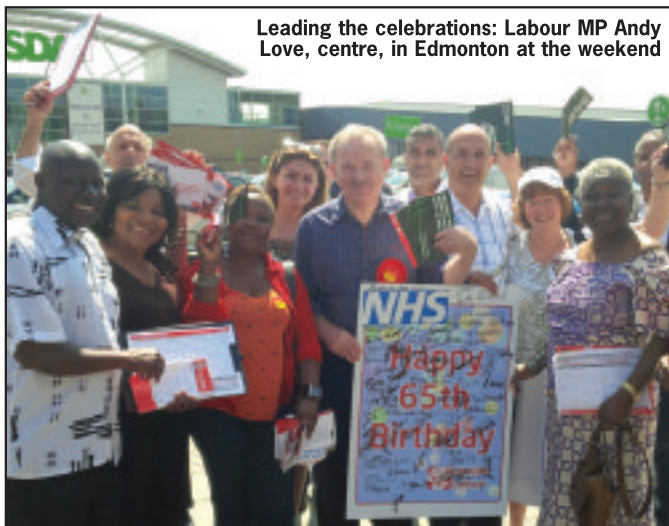

Liz Wise, chief officer of the Enfield Clinical Commissioning Group, which now has budgetary responsibility for healthcare in the borough, added: "The NHS touches all our lives and, as local GPs, we see every day the difference it makes to people."

"We will put patients at the heart of our new organisation so high-quality, safe care will be at the centre of all our decisions on the buying and planning of local health services."

"We know that too often people end up using hospital services for conditions that could be better managed in primary care or through teams based in the community, closer to patients' homes."

"This is particularly important for care for the elderly, so we will work with all our partners in social care, community services and hospitals to make sure people get the right care, in the right place."

Enfield North Conservative MP Nick de Bois, who is co-chairman of the all-party parliamentary group on primary care and public health, which last year launched an inquiry under the banner Is Bevan's NHS Under Threat?, warned that the health service needed to change to survive in the 21st century.

Leading the celebrations: Labour MP Andy Love, centre, in Edmonton at the weekend

"I think you need to recognise that the NHS has done more to improve the lives of people in Britain than any other institution," he told the Advertiser.

"But over the past 30 years demand for the health service has grown by around four per cent year on year."

"In order for the NHS to remain free at the point of delivery and funded by the taxpayer, the service must become more efficient. For example, we need to provide more care in the community so that those who don't need hospital care don't end up there."

"We also need to have a debate about taxation and, thirdly, people need to take personal responsibility for their health. I am sure Bevan did not create the NHS to pick up the tab for people's binge drinking."

The ADVERTISER COMMENT

A contradiction in health terms

THERE is little doubt that the Labour Party is using the birthday of the NHS, one of its flagship institutions, as a stick to beat the Tories with.

And there's no doubt the government deserves a kicking over the way it has taken over the running of the health service, or the fact that it has put Rupert Murdoch's crony Jeremy Hunt in charge of it while Aneurin Bevan takes another spin in his grave.

Against this background, locally, Enfield's new health commissioners are contradicting themselves.

While talking about the downgrade of Chase Farm Hospital, they insist that the controversial plans can still go ahead without the improvements to primary care, which was a stipulation set out by reviewers in both 2008 and 2011.

However, when the same group spoke to us about the history and future of the health service, they acknowledged that, in fact, more care needs to be provided closer to home to relieve pressure on hospitals and save money.

As we have said time and time again, one hand does not know what the other is doing with local health services.

Health bosses who are charged with making these decisions are only interested in their targets, hitting the bottom line and, in the situation with Chase Farm Hospital, pursuing the course of downgrade, blindly, despite any evidence which could disrupt their plans.

Ignoring recommendations from the Independent Reconfiguration Panel may ultimately prove to be a dangerous decision.

It is the last thing we want, yet be warned – north London now runs the risk of becoming the Mid-Staffordshire NHS trust with patients falling through the gap because of need, which, with the population boom, could soon be overwhelming for the services available.

Network Rail must be held to account

FOLLOWING my two letters to the Advertiser in May and June concerning the Lincoln Road level crossing, the next thing I read was that it had been decided to close the crossing permanently (Advertiser, July 3).

We had been told previously that the crossing would be temporarily opened to allow Enfield Council to monitor the traffic flow through it. Of course, no such thing has happened.

I fully agree that it is time call an end to all these ridiculous letters from councillors and to meet head-on with the real culprits in all of this – Network Rail.

They have consulted no one and have done exactly as they pleased throughout all this.

I urge everybody to turn up for this meeting (as and when it is arranged) and to give these people a roasting!

Steven Knowles
Woodfield Close, Enfield

□ HAS Network Rail the power to permanently close the Lincoln Road level crossing?

Lincoln Road pre-dates the railway, which was then built across it on to Enfield Town, and as the road is older than the railway it probably has right of way.

What do the experts say?

B Beeston
Abbey Road, Bush Hill Park

No way through: Lincoln Road level crossing

□ I was very surprised to read that Councillor Chris Bond was showing concern about Network Rail closing the Lincoln Road level crossing (Advertiser, June 26).

I wonder if he is showing the same concern regarding the installation of the gate in Church Road, Ponders End.

This gate is causing more congestion through Ponders End High Street, South Street and beyond.

Busers are having to mount the pavement, as well as cars and lorries, to get along South Street, especially by the working men's club. I have lived near Church Road all my life, and can't see why the council has had to put a gate there now, after all these years.

I can't recall any serious accidents along there ever.

The council should allow motorists to park partially on the pavements both sides of South Street and in Church Road – and then traffic will move more freely in all directions.

Bernard King
Cuckoo Hall Lane, Edmonton

NHS reconfiguration has left the health service looking even sicker

THE reconfiguration of NHS services will see major accident and emergency, consultant-led maternity and children's services transferred from one NHS hospital, to another.

That means fewer hospitals providing major services further away and possibly swamped by patients ("A&E patients face 16-hour wait before a bed is found", Advertiser, July 3).

To discourage people from visiting hospital A&E departments, instead, polyclinics, urgent care and walk-in centres will be provided in the communities nearer to people's homes with 24/7 services.

It is turning out to be a pipedream as they need capital outlay and providing a second set of GPs will require double funding. Diagnostic equipment is too expensive to provide at every centre, as are 24-hour services.

Urgent care centres are now tagged on to, or are an integral part of, each hospital site instead. Polyclinics are no longer part of the plans and walk-in centres are few.

The Health and Social Care Act with its regulations acting to involve the private sector to a far greater extent adds up to the total mess our politicians have made of our NHS.

Ivy Beard
Littlebrook Gardens, Cheshunt

Protect public tennis courts and allow everyone to play the sport

I AM writing to you regarding the much-used tennis courts on the A10 near the Church Street junction.

The council is currently looking at proposals to remove the tennis courts in order to expand Edmonton Cemetery.

The intended policy of the environment department to remove the tennis courts is totally at odds with the leisure services department's objective to get residents active and to deliver an Olympic legacy.

The council either wants people to use our parks and leisure facilities to improve health in the borough, or it does not.

Yellow lines are just not needed

I WOULD like to know why the council has decided to paint double yellow lines along Windmill Road, Edmonton.

It would make sense if it was at the end near the school and the Millfield Theatre, but instead they have been put in a residential area where there are not enough car parking spaces as it is.

If the markings were on the edge of roads to stop people blocking turnings, it would make sense. But they appear as random etchings.

I have found myself having to park two roads away as people are clambering for spaces.

It is compounded by residents who do not have drop-down kerbs but have created driveways and insist that people do not park outside their house.

Songs of praise

THE Lynmore Singers would like to thank all those who attended the spring concert held at St George's Church in Enfield.

A total of £800 was raised in support of the charity Teens Unite Fighting Cancer, which is based in Broxbourne.

We also thank the Latymer School Chamber Orchestra and soloist Samuel Jenkins, who contributed to making the evening such a success.

Helen Miles
Mill Lane, Cheshunt

Protect public tennis courts and allow everyone to play the sport

There will be an argument put forward by some that tennis is an expensive sport.

That being the case, the council should keep facilities such as the tennis courts on the A10 so that people who cannot afford to be members of a club can play tennis, whether it be competitively or just for fun.

On Sunday, Britain had its first men's singles title winner at Wimbledon for 77 years. If you feel inspired, please use these tennis courts before it is too late.

Missed opportunities to cut road pollution

RE: "Poison fears over North Circular fumes" (Advertiser, June 26).

It is no surprise that the North Circular is the most polluted road in London.

Excessive traffic pollution is caused by traffic overcrowding travelling at slow speed and queuing at traffic lights, road junctions and roundabouts.

In the 1980s and 1990s the Department of Transport planned 13 projects to improve and widen the road along its length, from the east London river crossing to the Chiswick roundabout.

They would have created free-running traffic with the aid of underpasses and flyovers, producing less pollution.

Six projects were completed.

Local examples are the Cambridge Roundabout and The Angel, Edmonton.

Project number eight, Green Lanes to Bounds Green Road, was awaiting approval when responsibility for London's major roads was passed to the new mayor of London [Ken Livingstone].

He cancelled the remaining projects on grounds of cost and necessity.

The current mayor [Boris Johnson] has

Busy: The North Circular is the most polluted road in London

now provided a "people friendly" development which includes an additional traffic lane along Telford Road, more controlled pedestrian crossings, some changes to road junction layout and a bus lane east of Green Lanes. Bowes Road remains the same width.

We still have stop-go traffic and the bus lane causes traffic congestion.

No serious attention has been given to traffic flow and the opportunity to widen the road has been lost by bringing back into use the derelict houses earmarked for that purpose.

Lack of foresight by City Hall has condemned residents to a future environment poisoned with toxic fumes.

To provide a development that makes pollution worse and then issue a report condemning the area is deplorable.

LAST week marked 65 years of the National Health Service.

The NHS touches all our lives at some point. There are times when it makes us frustrated, but there are more occasions when we realise how lucky we are to have it.

The majority of us were born in an NHS hospital, we'll have our babies in an NHS hospital and in our old age, they are likely to provide care for us.

We are all aware of the current problems and future challenges the NHS faces – trolley waits in A&E departments, operation waiting times, pressure from emergency admissions etc.

Health Secretary Jeremy Hunt called the NHS a "60-year-old mistake", but a poll this year revealed that 37 per cent of Brits are most proud of the NHS above all other institutions.

Across London, eight A&Es are earmarked for closure, including Chase Farm Hospital. If there was a time to fight to keep the NHS, this is it.

Environment Agency is called out twice in the same week to clean up water in brook

Pollution mystery

Dirty water: The Environment Agency had to clean up the brook in Hilly Fields last week

By Kim Inam

kim.inam@nlhnews.co.uk

THE Environment Agency has been called in twice within a week to clear pollution in a river.

The government agency was needed to clean up the waters of Turkey Brook, in Hilly Fields, and land adjacent to Whitewebbs Golf Course, in Beggars Hollow, Clay Hill.

The agency was informed on June 30 that there was oil in the stream near Whitewebbs Lane.

Officers found an "obvious sheen" on the river and took samples. The following day absorbent pads were placed in the stream to soak up the oil.

Michael Hughes, of Mandeville Road, Freezywater, who regularly goes walking around the grounds of Myddleton House and the nearby Forty Hall Estate, told the Advertiser that early last week he noticed a strange smell in the air.

He said: "I thought it was creosote – the stuff people protect fences with – but on Wednesday I saw the Environment Agency staff replacing absorbent pads and they said it was diesel fuel."

"People are always walking their dogs along there and the dogs will often go into the stream."

Last Wednesday the agency received reports of a smelly brown liquid and fish in distress in the brook as it flows through Hilly Fields, off Clay Hill.

Officers were able to rescue some fish and installed aerators to pump oxygen into the water.

The agency confirmed that by Saturday oxygen levels in the water had risen to a level that could sustain fish.

A spokeswoman for the agency said of both incidents: "We are investigating to see where the pollutants may have come from. It seems like there could be a lot of options."

Award-winning governor Mick to carry on with youth work after he retires as police inspector

Retiring: Inspector Mick Lees

A POLICE inspector, who has been recognised by Enfield Council as an outstanding school governor, says he will not be giving up his work with the borough's youngsters when he retires later this month.

Mick Lees will not abandon the young people in the borough he works with once he steps down after 28 years in the police force on July 22.

He said: "I will continue as the chairman of governors at Aylward Academy and intend to spend the next six months completing my PhD study on youth behaviour."

"I am interested in what young people themselves think works to control the antisocial aspects of youth behaviour."

Mick, who was given the outstanding school governor of year award by the council, also plans to volunteer one day a week with the Youth Engagement Panel, which he initially developed alongside Sergeant Neil Standring after a spate of teenage murders in the borough in 2008.

"The YEP was set up to find ways of reducing youth offending and improving support for young people and it is very successful," he added.

"The overriding quality to be a good governor is a desire and a passion to make the life of the young people in your school better."

"You need to be strong enough to challenge the school principal and other members of the school's senior leadership team, but be able to do so in a way that is acceptable to them."

Ayfer Orhan, cabinet member for children and young people, said: "School governors bring their own experience and knowledge to an extremely important role and deserve our wholehearted thanks."

Regeneration scheme hit as campus site is earmarked for school

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

PLANS to regenerate a swathe of the borough have been left in tatters after the government bought land for a new free school from under the council's nose.

The Department for Education has snapped up the former Middlesex University Queensway campus, in High Street, Ponders End, for the Cuckoo Hall Academy Trust, which wants to set up its first secondary school, Heron Hall, on the site.

Enfield Council chiefs have been left with their plans for a multimillion-pound regeneration of the area ruined and cabinet member for regeneration Del Goddard told the Advertiser it could mean a year-and-a-half delay for the facility.

"We are disappointed that our £100million scheme to improve Ponders End will not proceed in its original format as part of the site will now be used for a new academy school," he said.

"We are now having to consider revised proposals for a predominantly residential mixed-use scheme that will meet our original objective to rejuvenate and regenerate Ponders End High Street."

"In the circumstances our regeneration proposals will be delayed, possibly by up to 18 months, but we remain committed to the comprehensive regeneration of the wider site."

However, the chairman of the Heron Hall board of governors Phill Sowter said he was shocked that the council had not welcomed with open arms the news that the school would be built there.

"I am surprised they haven't approached us to tell us how delighted they are with this decision, because a secondary school being set up here is a real benefit to the area," he said.

Mr Sowter dismissed the suggestion that the school plan had disrupted a vital regeneration scheme and insisted: "The school will be a major regeneration in itself since it will bring 150-200 jobs to the area. That is not insignificant."

While this will be the first secondary school the trust has opened, Mr Sowter stressed that the staff were more than experienced enough to cope with the challenge, and revealed that they would be teaching pupils Latin and "core knowledge" subjects.

He added that the new secondary school would open on the former university campus with an initial intake of 90 pupils and, ultimately, the school would expand to an eight-form entry.

A new school building will be developed but, according to Mr Sowter, that will not be ready for another two years.

Dancing delight: 1,000 children from 25 primary schools took part in the eighth annual folk festival at Forty Hall last week

Dancing in the Youngsters have a ball at

ABOUT 1,000 children took part in a celebration of folk dancing at Forty Hall last week.

The youngsters from some 25 primary schools turned out on Thursday for the Enfield Primary Schools Folk Festival, an annual event now in its eighth year, which aims to celebrate multicultural society.

Pupils joined forces to perform six English traditional dances. Schools also had the opportunity to learn and perform a multicultural dance they had researched themselves, with this year's array spanning the globe, from the Andes and Ecuador, to Poland, Bulgaria, Greece and Ireland, and to Africa and north America.

Marion Coram-Ware, who works on the Enfield PE team and helped co-ordinate the event, said: "We had a wonderful range of dances. It was fantastic."

The Black Pig Band, who have performed at the event for the past four years, provided the

Andy nets coaching award

Top coach: Andy Russell, left, with Forbes Chapman

By Jacob Mignano

news.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

A WINCHMORE Hill coach has been hailed by the Football Association as a grass-roots hero.

Andy Russell, who is the youth development officer at Winchmore Hill Football Club and a sports lecturer at Redbridge College, has been rewarded for his outstanding contribution to community football at county level as part of the FA Community Awards.

Andy has worked in football for more than 30 years and, alongside his duties at the club and the college, he runs Football 1st Coaching Courses, which he and his wife, Anna, founded in 2000.

Andy believes the award largely stems from his work at Winchmore Hill, particularly with the youth set-up. He was brought in originally as first-team manager – a position he still holds – but soon realised there was little opportunity for children to play at a community level.

“My background was in kids’ football,” he said. “I already had the Football 1st courses up and running.

“Since I started the youth development side, it has gone from strength to strength and has grown into what is now a gifted and talented section. Our eldest age group, the under-17s, have just won the Cheshunt Premier Division.”

Andy has also established a partnership between the club and the college, giving youngsters an opportunity to cut their teeth at the club – both as players and coaches.

“I have players who are 30 now whom I’ve known since they were 16,” he said.

“I’ve brought them over from college, helped them get qualified and now they coach alongside me in specific age groups. It’s very rewarding.”

Andy “didn’t have a clue” that he was being nominated for the award.

“When I read the statements people had written, it was very moving,” he added.

Bob Gyles, chairman of Winchmore Hill FC, added: “The fire within Andy burns brightly and we are blessed to have him on board.”

A SCHOOLGIRL who took part in foreign language spelling bee final said she found the competition “nerve-racking”.

Twelve-year-old Charlotte Berry, a pupil at Highlands School, in Worlds End Lane, Winchmore Hill, was a finalist in the Routes to Languages spelling bee held at Anglia Ruskin University, in Cambridge, on Friday.

Having come through three rounds to get to the final, Charlotte kept her cool in front of a packed lecture theatre, where she had to correctly spell as many Spanish words as possible in one minute.

Of the 200 Spanish words she had been given to memorise, Charlotte was ironically asked to correctly spell the only two words she had struggled with in practice – the Spanish words for Pakistan and bird. Fortunately, she got both right in the competition.

The budding linguist was one of 34 competitors in the Spanish category, but unfortunately missed out on being one of four chosen finalists. Not that she minded too much.

Charlotte said: “I didn’t mind that I didn’t win – I got to go to Cambridge, that’s good enough.”

“It was fun. After I had done it I couldn’t actually stand up, I was so nervous.”

She added: “My mum and dad and my teacher were there to watch me. They said that I did very well and that I was the only one they could understand!”

Charlotte’s Spanish teacher Carmen Edmett

Budding linguist: Charlotte Berry

said: “She is a talented linguist. She’s very committed and has never missed a session.”

“The whole school is very proud of her and as she is our third student in three years to go to the final in Cambridge. We are very proud of our record.”

Even though she enjoyed it, there’s unlikely to be a repeat performance for Charlotte.

“I don’t really want to go through all that again,” she added. “It’s fun, but it’s also really nerve-racking.”

Woman in court accused of murdering husband

A WOMAN has been charged with murdering her husband last September.

Ann Pollen, 46, of Hawthorn Road, Upper Edmonton, was denied bail when she appeared at the Old Bailey on Friday accused of the murder of Leonard Pollen, 58, of the same address, on September 3, 2012.

She is due to reappear in court for a plea and case management hearing on September 20.

£250k target for charity bike ride

Scenic route: The charity bike ride heads through the countryside to Cambridge

THERE'S still time to sign up for the annual 60-mile London to Cambridge charity bike ride leaving Edmonton later this month.

This is the 16th year of the annual fundraiser in aid of Breakthrough Breast Cancer, which begins along the River Lee Navigation in Picketts Lock on Sunday, July 28, and heads through the countryside to finish at Midsummer Common in Cambridge.

So far the event has raised more than £2.5million for the charity, which funds 25 per cent of the UK's research into breast cancer. Last year 3,785 riders took part, raising almost £200,000.

Elizabeth Martin, the charity's events fundraising executive, said: "We are really excited about this year's bike ride. It is a fantastic event for all of the family to enjoy and a great excuse to make the most of the countryside while keeping fit."

"We aim to raise £250,000 from the event this year, which will help fund our work into discovering new and better treatments for breast cancer for nearly two months."

Entry is £19.50 for individuals and £18.50 each for members of groups. The registration fee does not go to the charity.

For more information and to enter, visit www.bike-events.com, call 020 7025 2422 or email cycling@breakthrough.org.uk

Paula's Petals was opened in 1988, at that time Paula was attending Floristry College to gain her Sitting and Guilds qualifications as well as running the shop full-time. Her husband John, son Darren were both assisting her. After 5 years she then opened a second shop in Enfield and her daughter Kerrie supervised this shop. After another 2 years a third shop was open near by in Chase Side. After gaining her qualifications she went on and achieved her Masters degree and achieved 3 consecutive years winning UK Designer of the year and one of the only contestant to achieve 99/100 in a competition piece of work. For her achievement she was made a Crystal diplomat a World renowned company in floristry that supply all the flower food sachets and other flower components to Retail and the Wholesale markets. She has seen many changes in the last 25 years from going to the London market at 2 am in the morning to buy her flowers, to having the flowers brought direct from Holland and having them delivered to the door.

There were no computer buying then, so everything was done manually.

All wedding work was mainly wired not put into a handle or tied as it is now, the floristry skills were more intense to what they are now. With only one shop remaining Paula is still as busy as ever and still has her family involved, all of her staff have achieved their Sitting and Guilds level 3 and have had extra tuition from Paula. Without her family who have supported her throughout and her loyal staff who have worked with her, also her customers, she could not have achieved the success it has brought today.

Please come and join us in the celebrations from 1pm on Saturday 13th July for food and refreshments, children can have complementary glitter tattoos, and for every purchase a free complementary gift will be given. Hope to see you then.

OPINION

AS former South African president Nelson Mandela approaches death, most people on the planet have relished their memories.

The triumphant walk down from Victor-Verster Prison in 1990; the long queues of black people waiting to vote for the first time in their lives – a shaming contrast with politics here in Britain.

Or a more light-hearted episode: thousands of white rugby fans cheering Mandela's attendance at a Springboks game.

Wind the memories a bit further back, however, and you won't feel so warm inside.

In 1987, when Margaret Thatcher described Mandela as a terrorist, she wasn't just expressing her own small-minded prejudices.

The then prime minister was

Howard Medwell

speaking for most of the British political and business establishment.

The racist apartheid system, which lasted from 1948 to 1989, deprived South Africa's black majority of its most basic rights.

In the mines and factories, this meant that bosses could get away with paying starvation wages under non-union conditions.

British investors – Barclays Bank, Anglo-American, BP and many others – took full advantage of this.

Anti-apartheid protesters in this country called for an economic boycott of South Africa, but we were dismissed as a bunch of lefty do-gooders.

That's all in the past, done and dusted, isn't it? Yet only last year, 34 South African platinum miners, on strike for higher pay, were shot by the police.

Most of the dead were migrant workers from other, more desperate parts of the African continent.

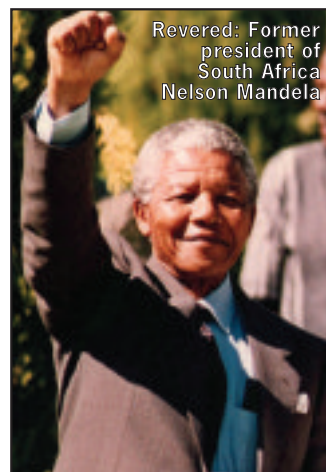

The employer they were up against was Lonmin plc – check them out on the London Stock Exchange.

So farewell, then, Nelson Mandela. There will be pompous speeches in Parliament.

There will be lengthy obituaries in the "intellectual" papers. The tabloids probably won't cover the funeral unless Naomi Campbell gets an invite.

And there will be continuing big profits for the British businessmen who exploit the misery of African workers.

Revered: Former president of South Africa Nelson Mandela

ENFIELD is a great place to live, and the services of the council are important to all of us, and are rated highly by you. However, they are threatened by perpetual and escalating government cuts.

The global financial recession placed pressures on most of the western economies, and different governments responded in different ways.

I have my differences with the way that the Conservative-led coalition has approached matters, which I think has made matters worse.

Cutting deep and fast has prevented economic recovery so necessary to create jobs and cut the benefit bill.

However, I want to concentrate on the impact on local government – and Enfield in particular. Councils have endured the biggest reductions in the public sector to date with a 33 per cent cut in real terms. And now Chancellor

Doug Taylor

Leader of Enfield Council

George Osborne has given us another ten per cent cut from 2015.

Councils will not easily be able to just manage these cuts. Across the country there will be major losses of services.

In Enfield, this is made worse by the impact of grant damping, where the government has taken a further £8million from us after it used a formula to determine that the money is needed to help boroughs like Westminster and Kensington to get a bit more than maybe the calculations deem they deserve.

But we have to do our bit, you might think. It all seems a bit hypocritical when Eric Pickles' government department, the one which allocates us funds, overspends by a staggering £217 million. So much for government financial management.

But we are elected to do a job and this Labour council will continue to manage the finances properly, make savings with least impact where we can and deliver what the borough needs.

That doesn't mean doing nothing to make Enfield a better place.

I know that you want us to try to deliver for you and to be on your side. And that is what I intend to do.

'Vibrant' Southgate throws open doors

By Kim Inam

kim.inam@nlhnews.co.uk

SOUTHGATE businesses will showcase their wares at a shopping festival being held later this month.

The first-ever Southgate Festival will include three performance areas and stalls as well as outside dining at the area's many restaurants.

The event, which will run from 11am to 5pm on Saturday July 20, has been organised by the Southgate Chamber of Trade and Enfield Business and Retailers' Association.

Emma Chapman, who owns gift shop Ruby Blu, in Chase Side, is secretary of the chamber of trade.

She said: "The idea is to bring people to the streets of Southgate to see what we can offer as businesses.

"We are a diverse community. All the businesses are working hard together to bring customers into our shops.

"People may say there's so many restaurants – we have amazing restaurants – but there are small shops opening up as well.

"We have new and existing business that are very valuable to our area.

"We are trying to keep it vibrant and alive with trade."

Local musicians will be playing live music in Chase Side, Dennis Parade and Ashfield Parade and there will also be barbecues, children's entertainment and a belly dancer.

Mark Leaver, EBRA's town centre manager for Southgate added: "We're finding the festivals work well to increase footfall in town centres.

"The idea is to get new people to the area so they see what the town centre has to offer, whether they go and shop that day or hopefully they come to the town centre, like the feeling of the place and think, 'I will come back on a later date and do some business'.

"There is an upturn but it's slow, so we are doing everything we can to help."

Ms Chapman added that membership of the chamber, which includes residents, had increased as plans for the festival came to fruition.

Attention: DENTURE WEARERS Attention: DENTURE REPAIRS

If you are a denture wearer then this article may be of some interest to you!

If you can relate to any of the following questions then it is a sign your denture needs attention:

DO YOU FIND YOUR DENTURES:

- Do not fit as well on your gums as they used to?
- Are they loose?
- Do not cut food as well as they used to?
- Do they make your face look older?
- Have discoloured despite meticulous cleaning or
- Cause discomfort/pain on chewing?

If any of the above breeds familiar territory then I may be able to alleviate some of these problems for you.

My name is Caroline Persaud I am a qualified CLINICAL DENTAL TECHNICIAN.

Many of you may be aware of Dental Technicians/Mechanics who repair and produce dentures for dentists, however, due to recent changes in the Dental law, a group of Dental Care Professionals known as Clinical Dental Technicians have been approved by the General Dental Council and can now see denture wearers who have no natural teeth remaining, directly without having to visit a dentist. The advantages to you, the patients, are numerous. You can be treated by a professional who has been clinically trained to undertake the impressions of your mouth and who also has the technical skill to manufacture your denture to meet your requirements.

A more direct, rapid and personalised service, that can be delivered to you in the comfort of your own home or at my day clinic in Edmonton.

If you wish to discuss any denture related issues please do not hesitate to contact me on:

Choir's ambitious Verdi concert to celebrate 75 years

By Jacob Mignano

news.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

THE Enfield Choral Society will celebrate its 75th anniversary this weekend with an ambitious performance of Verdi's Requiem.

The society began in 1937 when Vincent Evans formed The Young People's Society of Christ Church, Enfield.

The aim was to provide a means of entertainment for young people aged 16 and over of all religious backgrounds.

The society consisted of a choral section, dramatic section, orchestral section and social section – and The Enfield Choral Society is the sole section that still remains.

Mark Sproson is the music director and first became involved with the choir nine years ago.

In that time it has expanded its number from around 65 to almost 90.

And Mark expects to have as many as 110 singers at the concert.

"It's great to be involved in something with a history like this," said Mark, who is also an accomplished singer and choral arranger.

"There are many choirs in London, but not many that have lasted 75 years.

"We have been building up to this for a few years, building our stamina as it were."

The choral society has been experimenting and has expanded its repertoire.

Mark told the Advertiser that the performance of Verdi's Requiem is very much the "culmination" of a lot of hard work.

"This kind of scale of piece comes around pretty rarely for a choir like us," he added.

"It's very flamboyant, a complete roller coaster of emotions. We are expecting it to pack a real punch."

Jayne Buckland, former mayor of Enfield and a member of the choir, said that its longevity "just goes to show how popular singing has always been in Enfield".

‘It's great to be involved in something with a history like this. There are many choirs in London, but not many that have lasted 75 years

"Mark is a total professional and attracts some of the very best singers," she added. "He gets the very best sound out of us."

The concert takes place this Saturday at Enfield County School, in Holly Walk, Enfield Town, and begins at 7.30pm.

Tickets can be bought for £13 (£11 concessions) by calling 07856 793 434, or by emailing tickets@enfieldchoralsociety.org.uk

Tickets are available on the door for £14 (£12 concessions). Seating is limited.

'Roller coaster of emotions': Choral society music director Mark Sproson is looking forward to the 75th anniversary concert on Saturday evening

Wear your finest faerie garb for record attempt

By Kim Inam

kim.inam@nlhnews.co.uk

CHILDREN are being invited to take part in a magical fun weekend.

Spellbound, The Edmonton Festival is taking place this Saturday and Sunday at Jubilee Park, in Galliard Road.

The free family event, which will include arts and craft activities, stalls and live music performances, has a holistic theme.

It has been organised by Funky Festival Company, Ziggy's World Jazz Club, Artstart and Love Your Doorstep, in partnership with Enfield Council.

As well as live music and a parade through Edmonton, the event will include a record-breaking attempt to get as many people dressed as faeries together on Sunday as possible.

"Edmonton has never seen anything like it," said Steve Taylor, from Ziggy's World Jazz Club. "It's a family-orientated event - it's quite hippy with story-telling and face-painting as well as healing, meditation and drumming."

"And our music is focused on up-and-coming acts from Enfield and Edmonton as well as Mica Paris."

The UK soul singer will be performing in the Ziggy's World Jazz Cabaret Tent from 6pm on Saturday. The day will also see performances by Gypsy Fire and

Dress for the event: People are invited to wear faerie costumes at the Spellbound festival, where Mica Paris, below, will be performing gospel-blues artist Jumoke Fashola.

Sunday's Spellbound fun will include the Magical Menagerie Parade, which starts at 1pm in Pymmes Park, in Victoria Road, before making its way through to Jubilee Park.

Supported by Art Start, this year's theme is anniversaries, specifically the coronations of Henry V, Queen Victoria and Elizabeth II - plus Dr Who.

Then at 3pm there will be a record-breaking attempt to gather as many faeries together as possible.

There will also be live music from Steve Taylor Big Band Explosion, Latin and Salsa Manteca as well as Michelle Drees, from Jazz Tap Project.

Steve added: "In spite of all its problems, there's a big community in Edmonton that people don't realise and there's huge community support for this."

Entry to the festival is free and a £5 wristband allows all-day access to the Come Away with The Faeries activities.

Events run from noon to 8pm on Saturday and noon to 6pm on Sunday.

Fifty Words discusses thin line between love and hate

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

"THERE should be 50 words for love, not just one – just like the eskimos have 50 different words for snow."

That's what Janine tells husband Adam the first time the couple spend an evening together without their nine-year-old son Gregg, who is away on his first sleepover.

The setting is the couple's trendy apartment in Brooklyn, New York, and Adam, a successful architect, is determined to bring the passion back into their love life, which has been completely overshadowed by their busy work schedules.

On the face of things, you would think that Adam (Richard Clothier) and Janine (Claire Price) are happy – it may just be that they have been working too much.

But what unravels is the very thin line between love and hate – and their first night alone becomes a battle to save their marriage.

Michael Weller's Fifty Words is a play about modern marriage, betrayal and urban middle-class life.

As austerity bites, and with more than 40 per cent of all British marriages failing, according to statistics,

Leaving a nasty taste: Adam (Richard Clothier) and Janine (Claire Price) battling to save their marriage in Fifty Words a lot of people will be able to relate to Adam and Janine – a successful couple but neither financially or emotionally secure, perpetually trying to combine their busy lives with the need to be happy, while raising a child.

It is hard to divorce yourself from the idea that perhaps these people deserve each other. At one point Adam shouts at his wife: "Of course, you are disappointed with me. Marriage is two people disappointing each other the whole time but not quite enough to go their own way."

Both characters have a big sense of entitlement and lack a basic charm, but Clothier and Price's raw performances are awesome.

Anyone who has been in a serious relationship at one point in their life will be able to relate to the carnage.

□ Fifty Words is playing at the Arcola Theatre, in Ashwin Street, Dalston, until July 20. Tickets cost £14-£18. To book, call 020 7503 1646 or visit www.arcolatheatre.com

Getting Rentals Right

Just as anyone can open up an estate agency, so they can also start up a lettings business, without any training, experience or qualifications. This should concern landlords, because there is far more to the business than meets the eye. In many ways, finding a tenant is the easy bit!

The issues arise over how selective the agency is when recommending a tenant. For example, what is the tenant's credit history? They may impress by offering a large deposit, but will their payments be reliable in the future? They might tell you their intention is to stay for two years, but will they give notice after six months? Will they fail to pay their final month's rent as a way of enforcing the return of their deposit? Will they treat your property as if it were their own? Would they prove difficult to evict if need be, as court orders can take months?

Whilst no agent can avoid all these scenarios all the time, good lettings agents have a pretty good track record in how well they vet their tenants, and will visit the property regularly to ensure everything is ok. They will also be able to offer insurance covering damages, non-payment of rent, and even compensation for tenant-free voids. Additionally, they will recognise their duty to tenants by helping landlords to fulfil their obligations.

Your buy-to-let investment should deliver the optimal return with minimal involvement and stress on your part, and appointing a letting agent is part of this investment. A good investment can make you money, but a bad investment can actually lose you money.

At Ellis and Co in Enfield Town we pride ourselves in providing our clients with a first class service with over 40 years of experience in Lettings and Management. There is not much we haven't encountered. Our ARLA qualifications offer assurances in professional standards to which we conduct all aspects of our business and every Fully Managed Client will receive a free Rent Guarantee Insurance Policy for the first year which will include all eviction and legal costs. In other words 'Complete Peace of Mind'

Why not give us a call and find out why our service levels are considered to be the best in the industry?

CONDITIONS OF ACCEPTANCE FOR ALL ADVERTISEMENTS

Orders are accepted by the Publishers subject to the Standard Conditions agreed between the Newspaper Society and the Institute of Practitioners in Advertising. Save that:

1. Advertisements are accepted on the conditions that (a) descriptions relating to goods are accurate and in no way contravene the provisions of the Trade Descriptions Act 1968, and the Fair Trading Act 1973, and (b) the copy complies with the British Code of Advertising Practice. Advertisements offering credit or hire facilities must conform to the Consumer Credit (Advertisements) Regulations 1980.
2. 'Classified' Advertisers offering goods or service of a business, commercial or trade nature will, at the discretion of the Publishers, be deemed 'Trade Advertisers', and as such, must include their names in advertisements. A telephone number is an optional addition to these requirements and not an alternative.

To comply with the Business Advertisements (Disclosure) Order 1977, Trade Advertisers must make it clear that they are selling goods in the course of business either by content, format, size or place of the advertisement or by including words such as 'trade', 'dealer', 'agent', 'wholesaler', '(it)' etc. in the advertisement.

The Publishers accept no liability whatsoever for any loss or damage however caused arising out of:

- (a) Any error, inaccuracy or omission in the printing or publishing of any advertisement;
- (b) Any failure to publish an advertisement on the day / date or day / dates specified by the advertiser; or
- (c) Any delay in forwarding or omission to forward replies to box numbers to the Advertiser.

4. The Publishers will endeavour to publish advertisements on the day / date or day / dates specified by the Advertiser but insertion days / dates cannot be guaranteed.

5. Where shrinkage of advertisement occurs for whatever reasons the advertisement will be charged to the nearest full centimetre. This will NOT apply to the full-page advertisements, which remain full pages even after shrinkage.

6. The Publishers reserve the right to reject an advertisement or to vary it in any way they deem fit, at any time before publication, whether or not the advertisement has already been accepted for publication.

7. Whilst every effort is made to minimise errors in advertisements, mistakes do sometimes occur. Advertisers or their agents should therefore check their advertisements and inform us of any errors immediately. Responsibility cannot be accepted for more than one incorrect insertion. Typographical or minor changes, which do not affect the value of the advertisement, do not qualify for republication or allowances.

8. All gross advertising rates (except classified line and semi-display) are subject to and include a 0.1% Advertising Standards Board of Finance surcharge, payable by the advertisers to help finance the self-regulatory control system administered by the Advertising Standards Authority.

9. All rates quoted are subject to VAT at the rate currently in force at the time the advertisement appears.

10. Should the rate for advertisements be altered the price for remaining insertions shall be revised accordingly or the publishers shall have the right to cancel the unexpired portion of the order.

11. The placing of an advertisement order will be deemed an acceptance of these conditions.

12. Account facilities are granted at the discretion of the Company.

13. All accounts must be settled within the terms agreed by the Company and the Customer.

(1) Should an advertiser be in breach of the agreed terms, the publisher shall be entitled to levy a 10% surcharge on the value of the whole debt in respect of accounts with terms of less than 30 days, and any discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed.

(2) Regular monthly accounts that are in breach of the agreed terms will pay an interest rate of 6% above the current bank of England base rate for each month that the account is overdue and discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed. Should Legal action be required the interest will be charged in accordance with the County Court Act 1984.

14. Where an advertiser instructs / appoints an advertising agent to act on their behalf, the advertiser will remain jointly and severally liable for payment in respect of an advertisement(s) should the appointed agent fail to pay. For the avoidance of doubt, the agent acts for the advertiser and not for the publisher with the agent being responsible for notifying the advertiser of this liability.

15. All queries must be notified, preferably in writing to the accounts department of the publisher within 7 days of the invoice date.

16. All digital services are maintained in partnership with the publishers' hosting service providers. Every effort is made to ensure the continuity of these services, but some occasional technical downtime beyond the publishers control may occur. The publisher and its associated companies shall be under no liability if the production and distribution of web services is delayed or prevented by any cause beyond the control of the publisher.

17. The Publisher may provide voucher copies for published advertisements in electronic form only subject to certain criteria. Further information is available on request.

18. The copyright of advertisements produced wholly or partially by the Publishers belong to the Publishers. Advertisers may not reproduce such advertisements without the Publishers' consent.

Box Numbers

Boxes are open for the receipt of bona fide answers and are not available for distribution of trade canvassing matter. Original testimonials, goods, cash, cash stamps or payments of any kind must not be enclosed. A box Number and postal address are charged as part of the advertisement, i.e. Box No., centre address. There is no charge for forwarding replies.

Box numbers alone are not available for use in 'Trade' advertisements, other than Employment and Business Opportunities.

Holiday & Travel Category

All advertising must contain the name of the advertiser, phone number alone are not permitted.

Data Protection

The service you have requested may require us to carry out a credit search at a credit-referencing agency, which will record the fact that a search has been made. We may need to share your information with other lenders and credit reference agencies. However, we will only use the information from these searches to make credit-granting decisions and, if necessary, for fraud prevention or tracing debtors.

Data controller will use your information for administration and analysis. We may share your information with other Tindle Group Newspaper companies or carefully selected third parties. We, or they, may send you details of other goods and services, which may be of interest to you. The information may be provided by letter, telephone or other reasonable means of communication. Calls may be recorded or monitored for training purposes.

Special conditions apply with regard to the advertising of adult services, which are outlined to all persons submitting such advertisements.

In this rapidly moving technological age people are finding new ways to advertise, especially online via the internet. But contrary to what online sites are saying and common assumptions, print advertising is not dead. There are still benefits and disadvantages to both methods and the best way to succeed is to find a vehicle that covers both bases - and that's where we come in!

The Benefits of print advertising:

1. Print adverts last longer and will be seen often.
2. They will be seen by a large number of people and have the ability to hit a specific audience.
3. There is a more creative potential with print advertising.
4. There is a positive perception of newspaper advertising - it will encourage people to think the client is serious.

The Benefits of online advertising:

1. The advert content can be easily updated.
2. It's online 24/7, 12 months a year, all round the world.
3. A massive audience, with all ages now online.
4. Very quick response - you can be receiving candidates hours after posting your advert.

We'll give you the best of both worlds - every week, all week!

SANDRO'S JOY AS PAULINHO SIGNS

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

SANDRO is confident that his Brazilian international team-mate Paulinho will prove to be a big success at Tottenham Hotspur.

Paulinho completed a £17million move to Spurs from Corinthians on Saturday after playing a major role in helping Brazil to win the Confederations Cup, and Sandro is delighted that his fellow midfielder has joined him at White Hart Lane.

"I think he has what it takes to do well at Tottenham," he said. "This is a club with a great structure. It has been fighting for the top positions in the last few years and playing in European competitions. Paulinho will certainly help us to become even stronger."

"I am very happy. I will try to do the same thing that Heurlelo Gomes did when I arrived. He was very important when I came and helped me adapt. If Paulinho needs me, I will help. I welcome him."

Paulinho has won 17 caps for Brazil and scored their winner against Uruguay in the Confederations Cup semi-final, having also grabbed a late equaliser against England in the 2-2 draw at the Maracana last month.

And the 24-year-old is excited by the prospect of playing in the Premier League.

"First I want to thank Tottenham for believing in me," he said. "I am very happy and excited to have joined Spurs. It's a huge pleasure for my career to be at a club as big as Tottenham."

"I know it will be a huge challenge, but I think I can help all my colleagues to succeed and give a lot of happiness to the supporters."

"The training centre is amazing and I'm very impressed about the conditions Tottenham offers to the

A welcome addition: Sandro is confident that Paulinho will have a big impact at Tottenham Hotspur players. I will focus on my job and use the facility as much as possible.

"We used to watch the Premier League in Brazil – including Tottenham – and this club has big players. I just want to help them to succeed here."

"It's nice to have another Brazilian in the squad, and I'm excited to meet with Sandro and the other players."

He added: "I brought the sun with me from Brazil and it's very welcome. I'm excited to live here in England and hope to be successful and happy."

Paulinho is the first of what are expected to be a number of new signings over the summer as head coach Andre Villas-Boas attempts to strengthen Spurs' squad as they attempt to secure Champions League qualification.

However, Tottenham look set to miss out on long-term transfer target Leandro Damiao, with the Brazil striker now expected to join Italian outfit Napoli.

Skolars claim their fourth straight win

LONDON SKOLARS climbed up into fourth place in rugby league's Kingstone Press Championship One by beating Gateshead Thunder 52-24 at the New River Stadium on Sunday to secure their fourth successive victory.

There was little to choose between the sides during a first half which ended with the scores tied at 12-12, but the Skolars pulled away during the second period as they ran in seven tries to end up as comprehensive winners.

Mike Bishay scored an early try for the hosts, but Gateshead hit back and tries from Ben Hardcastle and Danny Nicholas saw them open up a 12-6 lead.

Ade Adebisi's try got the Skolars back on level terms prior to the interval, and they took firm control of the contest in the early stages of the second half as Dylan Skee, James Anthony and Louis Robinson all touched down within eight minutes of the restart.

Anthony's second try on 54 minutes increased their advantage to 34-12, but the visitors managed to reduce their deficit to just ten points as Omari Caro and Luke Hardcastle touched down in quick succession.

However, the Skolars were not to be denied and Mike Worrincy gave them breathing space by scoring following a fine break by Anthony.

The hosts were then forced to survive a sustained spell of pressure before they finally broke Gateshead's resistance in the closing stages as Dave Williams and Sam Wellings both crossed the line in the last five minutes. Skee converted eight of the tries.

Victory gives boost to North Middlesex's promotion hopes

A CRUSHING seven-wicket win at home to Brentham on Saturday saw North Middlesex climb into the promotion places in Division Two of the Middlesex County Cricket League.

It was a superb display by the bowlers which laid the platform for the victory as Brentham were dismissed for just 99 after being put in to bat. Ed Bird (3-30) and Sam Webber (2-17) did much of the early damage before Will Nicoll (3-6) mopped up the tail.

Evan Flowers then played the key innings with the bat, smashing a quick-fire 70 not out as the hosts raced to 101-3 in 15 overs to go second in the table.

However, Hornsey slipped into the relegation zone in the top flight after suffering a 94-run defeat at home to Richmond.

Andrew Lowe top-scored with 60 as the visitors amassed 227-9 batting first, with Michael Phillipson (4-77) and Paul Weekes (3-67) impressing with the ball for Hornsey.

But Weekes (64 not out) was the only man to make any impact with the bat for the hosts and they were dismissed for just 133, with Jack Porter taking 5-42.

Elsewhere, Highgate lost ground in the race for promotion from Division Three as they were beaten by 114 runs at Barnes.

James Drake-Brockman's 123 took Barnes up to a total of 240-8 – despite 5-73 from Craig Gourlay – and Highgate could only reach 126 in reply.

North London pulled clear of the foot of the table as they cruised to a six-wicket win at home to basement side Edmonton, dismissing their visitors for 115 before reaching 116-4 in reply to move 15 points above the bottom.

Hornsey host Winchmore Hill on Saturday, while North Middlesex entertain Uxbridge, North London are at home to Indian Gymkhana and Highgate go to Acton.
